FUND MANAGERS COMMENT

March was marked by the status quo from the Federal Reserve (Fed) and the European Central Bank (ECB), the decoupling of the US and Eurozone economies, and the end of the negative interest rate policy in Japan, as the Bank of Japan raised rates for the first time in 17 years. In the United States, while the CPI index for February, which came in higher than expected, raised fears of nasty surprises on the inflation front, the fact that the February PCE index came in at +0,3% as expected reduced the risk of a negative surprise for the Fed. At the same time, activity and employment remained buoyant. In the Eurozone, although some figures published during the month were encouraging, the situation remains complex. Inflation is slowing down, but the economy remains sluggish. Germany continues to send out less than reassuring signals, with manufacturing sector figures showing just how fragile it is. In addition, the publication of declining retail sales indicates that consumers are nervous. In France, the fiscal deficit overrun calls for additional efforts to reassure the various rating agencies, which could be costly in terms of growth.

At the end of March, the markets only priced in between two and three 25bp cuts in the United States and between three and four 25bp cuts in the Eurozone. German and US 10-year yields fell by 11bp to 2,30% and by 5bp to 4,30%, respectively. The rebound in Brent crude oil of almost 8% over the month, which went unnoticed, had very little impact on inflation expectations, which remained broadly stable on both sides of the Atlantic.

Against this backdrop, credit spreads tightened across all segments and sectors, ranging from -9bp for IG credit to -70bp for AT1 bonds, with the exception of HY corporate credit, which widened slightly over the month (+4bp). The positive contribution from the credit component, combined with the positive interest-rate effect and carry, enabled bond asset classes to post a solid performance over the month.

The IG primary market remained active, with €69 billion issued despite a high level of activity in February. At about €40 billion, corporate supply continued to outstrip last year's level (+25% year-on-year). Green formats accounted for 13% of volumes (€5,8 billion for corporates and €3,4 billion for financials). On the whole, this primary market supply was well absorbed, despite limited or even negative premiums in some cases, driven by inflows into credit funds. For financials, volumes were dominated by senior issues, but the market was more active in the Restricted Tier 1 segment (AT1s for insurers), with ASR and NN refinancing grandfathered bonds. For banks, Raiffeisen had to postpone its AT1 issue because of potential problems with the Strabag agreement, which is likely to reduce the sensitivity of its capital to a hasty departure from Russia. The bank will provide information on this issue at its AGM in early April.

In spite of yields rising since the start of the year, the portfolio remained prudently exposed to interest rate risk over the month. The portfolio's modified duration was dynamically managed between 1,5 and 4,5 points. In terms of geographical exposure, the portfolio continued to prefer exposure to European bonds rather than US bonds. On the yield curve, the portfolio maintained its exposure to two-year maturities, mainly through US and German two-year bonds. In addition, the steepening position on the US yield curve was maintained. The portfolio hedged its exposure to the UK market and tactically switched to negative modified duration during the month.

The portfolio's structure changed marginally as benchmark rates fell slightly and credit spreads tightened. At the beginning of the month, we increased our positions in corporate hybrids and subordinated financials (AT1). At end-March, the portfolio's modified duration was 4,5 and its credit duration was 2,5. Exposure to credit risk is 73%. The weight of HY diversification is 18%. The weight of government bonds and similar instruments rose from 20% to 23% of the portfolio over the month. Green Bonds account for 91% of the fund's investments (excluding cash and money market funds).
